Booze Quartet Given Fines Totaling $2500 and Stiff Jail Terms

A quartet of alleged dispensers of "hooch", "white mule," "blue ruin," "red-eye" "valley tan," and "mountain dew" faced Judge Bouton in civil court, Tuesday, and following pleas of guilty each was given a sentence commensurate with the discrepancies.

Frank Gorop of Instanter, drew the capital prize of assignments, in that charged with bootlegging and manufacture of the ardent, he was assessed the sum of $1,000 and accorded a term of six months in jail.

Henry Koch, of Kane, charged with the illicit sale of liquors, drew $500 fine and four months in Sheriff Robinson's hostelry.

Clarence Meyers, of Bradford, after acknowledging that he was guilty as charged, heard the words, "Five hundred dollars fine," following which he was consigned to the Hotel de Robinson for a period of six months.

Frank Miller of Bradford, the last on the list after making confession of guilt, received a five-and-six sentence—five hundred dollars fine and six months in jail.

The fines assessed totaled $2,500.

The plea of guilty of Clarence Meyers of Bradford followed close upon his reception at the county jail, Monday. His coming swelled the total number of prisoners in jail to thirteen.

The next session of Civil court will be held Monday, September 7, at 2 o'clock p. m., Judge Bouton presiding. Under the supervision of Sheriff Robinson the following petit jurymen were drawn for service on that occasion:

BOYS OF BUCKTAIL POST, AMERICAN LEGION, LINED UP FOR MEMORIAL B'LDING

Bucktail Post, No. 138, American Legion, will enter upon a grand campaign for a Memorial building for the soldiers of all wars of McKean county in September and it is their hope to convince the people of the necessity for a building that will prove not only a lasting monument to those who have upheld the flag, but a permanent source of public convenience as well.

Officers of Bucktail post, who have become custodians of the relics of all wars in which McKean county soldiers have participated assert that they have enough relics of real historical worth to furnish forth one of the best museums in Pennsylvania and that, sooner or later provision must be made for their care. Also, that with the most famous regiment of the Civil war organized and recruited in McKean county, no concerted effort ever has been made to perpetuate its name or to emblazon the manifold deeds of valor performed by its members. Thus to properly preserve all things of historical value and to perpetuate the names of McKean's heroes, is the aim and object of every member of Bucktail post.

Although plans have not been perfected, it is designed to have a building to which the entire county can point with pride—one which will afford rest rooms for women, a meeting place for the public, a general headquarters for the Grand Army of the Republic, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the American Legion—in fact for every patriotic organization known.

The law prescribes that such a building must be erected in the county seat and that the voters shall decide concerning the need for it. To this end the members of Bucktail post with the assistance of every other American Legion post in the county, will devote itself.

That the argument is on the side of the soldier boys, there is no doubt. From an educational standpoint alone such a building will prove of incalculable value.

It is the purpose of the boys to start campaigning in September and push the work of moulding sentiment for a bond issue until the polls close in November. With every soldier enlisted in the work, there can be no doubt of the outcome.

TOT OF SEVEN SUFFERS STAB IN RIGHT SIDE!

Lottie Ruth Marsh, aged seven years, of Farmers Valley, narrowly escaped fatal injury Tuesday, when a pair of shears punctured her right side, making a very deep and painful wound. The little girl was engaged in making doll clothes when she toppled from the chair in which she was sitting and fell in such a manner that the shears she was holding was deflected to her side. Fortunately the shears opened at the time of contact, which undoubtedly saved her life. Doctor Ostrander, who was called, dressed her injuries and says she will be all right in a short time.

SIX-YEAR-OLD GIRL KILLED IN CRASH OF AUTOMOBILES AT BRADFORD LAST SUNDAY

Bradford was the scene of a terrible fatality last Sunday afternoon when Phyllis Nichols, six-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Nichols, 177 South avenue, Bradford, was thrown from a Maxwell touring car by which she suffered a fractured skull and other injuries. Death resulted ere the child arrived at the Bradford hospital some few minutes later.

School and Center streets was the scene of the tragedy. The Maxwell car, owned by Mr. Nichols, and an Imperial auto owned and driven by Fred J. Stark, 20, of Gilmor, collided at the corner and the little girl was thrown from the rear seat in which she was riding, striking a telegraph pole. She was picked up by E. Holtz of School street unconscious but still alive. She was placed in a taxi which was driving by and rushed at all possible speed to the hospital, two blocks distant, but after a slight convulsion the child succumbed before the hospital was reached.

The car in which the little girl was riding was driven by Jeffrey D. Davidson and the other occupants of the car were Miss Ada Nichols and Mrs. Dora M. Grant.

In the Imperial car besides the driver were George Moore, Howard Burkett, Harold Burkett and James Burkett, all of Gilmor. The young men were just returning from Brook Lake where they had been swimming.

County Detective Allison of Smethport conducted an inquiry into the cause of the collision. The five young men who were riding in the Imperial car were questioned at the police station and were released with instructions to report at 10 o'clock Monday morning. The county detective also communicated with Mr. Nichols, father of the child, and with the occupants of the Maxwell car.

The Imperial car driven by Stark is a distinctive appearing machine equipped with a made over body of the racing type. Stark, with his four companions, was driving east on School street when the accident occurred. In the driver's seat beside Stark were George Moore and James Burkett, while Howard Burkett sat astride the body of the car and Harold Burkett rode on one running board.

Davidson, driving the Maxwell car, approached the crossing, driving north on Center street, intending to proceed up the hill to Pleasant street.

Neighbors residing near the intersection of the two streets, declared that both drivers sounded their horns as they approached the crossing, but neither car could be brought to a stop in time to avert the collision, although both drivers swerved from their course. Davidson, who had the right of way, attempted to turn to the right on School sreet while Burkett swung his machine up on Center street.

The machines collided on the street car tracks. The racing car smashed into the left side of the Maxwell, striking it exactly opposite the driver's seat.

The impact of the crash and the speed at which the cars were traveling carried the Maxwell to the northeast corner curb. The rear wheels of the Maxwell on the right side was smashed and the right side of the machine was lowered while the side which was struck was tipped slightly. The doors on the right side of the touring car were thrown wide open and the Nichols child was catapaulted clear of the machine. When the cars came to a stop the Maxwell was crowded against the north curb of School street pointed west and the Imperial car was swung around with its front pointed north. The body of the little child was found lying on the curb and sidewalk beside a telegraph pole which stands on the corner. It is believed that the childs head struck the telegraph pole inflicting the fatal injury.

When examined at the hospital it was found that the girl's head and face on the right side were horribly mutilated, the skull having been fractured.

No other occupants of the cars were injured, although Stark is said to have collapsed shortly after the accident.

When questioned at the police station by the county detective Stark stated that to the best of his judgment he was driving about twenty miles an hour when the crash occurred and the other young men who were riding in the car corroborated his opinion. Stark appeared completely stunned by the sad accident and was deeply grieved over the regrettable occurance. The other young men appeared to be equally concerned.

Both machines were considerably damaged. The Maxwell car was bent in the middle, the running board and fender on the left side being doubled back on the body. The right rear wheel was demolished while the tire and rim on the right front wheel were torn off. The windshield was shattered and the radiator and hood damaged slightly. The Imperial car was damaged to the extent of a broken front wheel on the right side.

Acting Coroner E. F. Williams conducted an inquest at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon into the accidental killing of six-year old Phyllis Nichols, who was thrown from a car and fatally injured at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon when two automobiles crashed at the corner of School and Center streets.

The coroner's jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the death of Phyllis Nichols was due to accident. No blame was attached to either driver for the accident.

Funeral services for the little girl were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the family home No. 177 South avenue. Interment in the family plot in Bolivar Run.

PREDICTS POTATO CROP LARGEST IN FIVE YEARS.

July estimates of this year's potato crop indicate a total production of 428,607,000 bushels, the largest since 1917. This is an increase of nearly 82,000,000 bushels over last year's short crop, but material gains are forcast for New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Increases of 30 per cent to 50 per cent are shown for all States on the Canadian border from Michigan westward. South Dakota may double its last year's crop, and Colorado and Utah indicate gains of 70 per cent respectively.

Local Railroads Hit Hard by Big Strikes Fail of Coal Cargoes

Gas Supply Saves Smethport's Industries from Embarrassment; Price of Fuel Skyrockets 100 Per Cent in 3 Weeks; General Outlook Viewed With Apprehension.

Although the railroads entering Smethport have not suffered to any appreciable extent from the strike of railway shopmen, it can truthfully be said that all have been hit hard by the coal strike—so hard, in fact, that if the strike continues a few weeks longer, they will find it extremely difficult to procure fuel for motive power.

The Shawmut railroad, perhaps the leading coal road of this vicinity, is reported to have all but ceased the transportation of black diamonds because of the big strike, and that instead of three and oft times four coal trains a day over the line the local freight carries all that can be procured.

Reports from the Kushequa are to the effect that officials are somewhat apprehensive over the outlook, fearful lest they be denied a sufficient quantity of coal for motive purposes. Although the Kushequa is not a coal road, it cares for all shipments consigned to points along its line, but for several days past these shipments have all but ceased.

The Pennsylvania road also is similarly affected.

Although Smethport's industries are in no wise alarmed over the fuel situation, primarily for the reason of an abundant gas supply, all realize the menace to industry generally because of the strike of miners and he crippling of the railway service.

"We have enough coal on hand to last two months," said Superintendent Johnson of the Interstate glass works, Tuesday, "and our stock of materials for the manufacture of glass will last for that length of time, anyway. Consequently, we are not at all alarmed because of the strike. It it should not be settled within two months, however, we surely will face a trying ordeal."

Superintendent Johnson also stated that the plant is being operated at maximum capicity and that the demand for the Interstate product is excellent.

Holmes & Gilfillan, in common with industrial heads generally, note both a shortage of coal and a material increase in price. According to one authority the price has swelled to such an extent that it is fully one hundred per cent. higher than that of a few weeks ago. Holmes & Gilfillan, however, are not much concerned over the outlook. While they admit that their coal stock has hit the ragged edge, they say they have an abundant supply o fwood on hand and that their motive equipment is so constructed as to permit of change to gas in a comparatively short time.

With the admission of a full one hundred per cent. boost in the coal price, there comes the statement that the rate varies from day to day, but that the variation always is upward. Apparently the sky will be the limit unless the strike is settled.

Reports from glass centers of Pennsylvania state that the main questions of interest confronting glass manufacturers and jobbers are the coal and railway strikes. Producers are deeply concerned over the fuel question. Coal prices already are far above the mark set by Mr. Hoover, and further boosting of prices may be expected.

Manufacturers also are experiencing trouble in securing shipments of inbound raw materials as well as in shipping finished products.

According to the Kane Republican for Tuesday, traffic on the B. & O. between Kane and Foxburg has been hit hard on account of the lack of sufficient motive power. The engines used on this division are badly in need of repairs, and as a consequence the moving of the usual number of freight trains between these points were abandoned on Monday, and it is doubtful if they will be able to resume until the conditions are more favorable. Passenger trains have been somewhat hampered. The train that is due to leave Kane at 10:45 a. m., for Pittsburgh and the train that is due to arrive from there at 4:10 p. m., are still running about on schedule time. Service between Kane and James City is to be continued. Instead of the train that arrives at Kane in the evening, returning to Mt. Jewett for the night, it will remain in Kane and make the trip to James City morning and evening.

SUPERVISING ENGINEERS SAY BOROUGH WILL HAVE MODERN ELECTRIC PLANT

Mr. G. W. Herrick of the St. Marys Electrical Supply company, and Mr. W. J. Quinlan of the Rochester Electrical Supply Company, supervising engineers of the Smethport borough electric plant, were in Smethport, Tuesday, in consultation with Borough Manager Backus. Both gentlemen expressed themselves highly pleased with the progress of the work to date and stated that when completed, Smethport will have one of the best electric plants in Pennsylvania.

PARENTS DO HONORS TO TWO LITTLE MISSES ON BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. T. W. Camp and Mrs. M. M. Pomeroy delightfully entertained with a dancing party Tuesday evening at Quirk's hall, in honor of the fourteenth birthday anniversary of the little misses Katharine Pomeroy and Jane VanDyke. Thirty-two intimate friends of both families were present, and the honored guests were the recipients of numerous congratulations. Beautiful Victrola and piano music enlivened the occasion, and choice refreshments were served.

MECHANIC ST. PAVING TO END AT CENTER ST.

The Mechanic street paving improvement will be extended from the original end at Bank street, to a point one hundred and fifteen feet farther south, or at the intersection of Center street.

In compliance with an agreement to grant this extension in the event that property owners along that thoroughfare raised a fund of six hundred and fifty dollars, the public service committee of the borough council, by authority of council, will appropriate the balance of the money needed for the improvement, amounting to one hundred and fifty dollars.

The property owners raised the needful sum early this week.

Agitation for this extension has been on ever since the improvement was proposed, and its success is credited to one, and probably two, property owners, who made decidedly substantial subscriptions. It now is believed that ere the work is completed efforts will be made to extend the paving to Rose Hill avenue.

When news of the extension gained currency the members of the borough council were highly commended by citizens generally because of their enterprise.

SEASON FOR BLACKBIRDS OPENS FIRST OF AUGUST.

As a matter of information, attention is called to the fact that the season on birds commonly known as blackbirds will open August 1st and will run continuously until November 30th, Sundays excepted. In 1921 it was possible to secure the hunters' licenses before the opening of the blackbird season, but every county in the State has received it's 1922 quota of hunters' licenses and all persons must secure hunters' licenses before hunting for blackbirds, except on lands on which they reside and cultivate as either the owner or lessee, or as a member of the family of such owner or lessee, also residing upon and cultivating lands, or on lands immediately adjacent upon permission from adjacent owners. The hunter's license law will be enforced strictly.

The law relative to training dogs does not permit training until September 1st. On and after that date it is legal to train dogs on any game except deer, elk, and wild turkeys until the 1st of March next following, Sunday excepted, so long as firearms usually raised at arm's length and fired from the shoulder are not carried while so training and no injury is done to the game pursued. The penalty for permitting dogs to chase game prior to September 1st is $10 for each day and $5 for each bird or rabbit killed.

300,000 PENNSYLVANIA MEN ARE OUT OF WORK BY REASON OF STRIKE.

Harrisburg, July 26.—More than 300,000 men are idle in Pennsylvania as the result of strikes, the state employment bureau reported. More than 270,000 of the strikers are in the anthracite and bituminous regions.

A gain of approximately 30,000 in the ranks of the employed has been made by return of striking mining employes to work. The 270,198 out are just 30,000 less than were reported out on June 1, when the maximum number of mine workers were voluntarily idle.

Excluding Altoona, Erie, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, where reports are conflicting and conditions are uncertain, the rail strike in Pennsylvania has affected 9597 employes. Machinists, molders and freight handlers on strike in the Scranton district number approximately 2500. These figures are based on reports of district employment offices. Workers are in demand in the agricultural, building and common labor fields all over the state.

SPREAD OF JAP BEETLE IS FEARED BY FARMERS.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 26.—Fear that the Japanese beetle, the insect which has been causing so much annoyance in the vicinity of Philadelphia, may spread to counties in the northern part of the state, is expressed at the state department of agriculture by those who have been observing the manner in which the pest has spread from New Jersey into parts of Bucks and Philadelphia counties and is now menacing Montgomery and Delaware.

The beetle was observed in the vicinity of Philadelphia three years ago and crossed the Delaware in spite of precautions. Lately, specimens of the insects have been closely examined.

One result of the apprehensions regarding the spread of the voracious insect has been that various bugs caught on farms are being sent here for identification, and some of the senders ask whether the insects are the dread oriental pest.

Unless the beetle can be headed off it may affect some sections as much as did the army worm several years ago.

PRINCESS MOLLIE

By SUSAN G. EOWLES

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Contrary to a popular saying about listeners, Mollie had just overheard some laudatory remarks about herself. Ordinarily she, being scrupulously exacting in all manners of feminine decorum, would have scorned the thought of listening without making her presence known. But one of those mischievous and inversive impulses which seemingly have no explanation, had persuaded her to remain and, shuddering at the very thought of the ugly word, Mollie inwardly confessed that she was eavesdropping.

Her womanly intuition told her (or so she fancied) that she was bound to hear more agreeable talk; and what woman, even though knowing it to be wrong, can resist the natural yearning to hear herself praised? So there she stood, apparently riveted to the floor, two feet from her sister's bedroom door, which was slightly ajar.

It was the remarks of Ada, her sister, and Miss Grace Sumner, their guest, which had arrested Mollie's attention. "Yes," the listener heard Grace repeat, "I'm sure the prince loves Mollie."

"But don't you think it a bit presumptuous to assume that he is in love?" countered Ada doubtfully. "And even if he thinks he loves Mollie," continued Ada, "we mustn't forget that all men are fickle. They are the prey of every pretty face."

"No," replied Grace firmly, as if to resent the other girl's sweeping indictment, "not this time, anyway. The prince was quite in earnest when he spoke of Mollie's dancing, her high marks at school and what not. Of course, he probably meant to be merely complimentary, but——" And Miss Sumner shook her head significantly.

Mollie felt she had heard enough as, conscious of a mixed feeling of shame and remorse, she prudently decided to withdraw out of hearing.

And now it should be explained that these three fortunate girls had, the previous evening, been entertained at an exclusive social by the unaffected and charming Prince Paul Alberto de Grazlo, a young nobleman whose title, wealth and lineage were proverbial and the envy of rival aristocracy. And Alberto, as he preferred to be called, had shown himself to be a "regular fellow," unspoiled by fortune, station or name.

Alone in her own room, Mollie sat down to think it over, and distinctly recalled that Alberto had been partial to her, Ada and Grace were dear girls, of course, and both deserved paragon husbands. But if the prince chose to . . . Besides, wasn't there a saying among men that all is fair in love and war? Any good reason why this sort of etiquette should exist, solely for men?

It was while Mollie's mind was in the confused state of trying to make a choice between remaining aloof and admitting that the chance of becoming a princess was worth some effort, that the telephone rang. Would Miss Mollie honor the humble Alberto by accompanying him on a drive into the country?

Mollie was eager to accept, but thought it more dignified to decline a first invitation. If Prince de Grazio should care to call some other time, and if the weather were suitable, etc., etc.

A week later Alberto called by appointment, and despite the fact that Mollie had spent the entire day in preparation for this anticipated call, she stopped before her mirror and propped her hair here and there, scrutinized her skirt at the ankles and gave her face a final daub.

Alberto led Mollie to his big car and instructed his chauffeur, and presently they whirled into the open country. Mollie shivered as the cool breezes penetrated her thin waist, and she found the reflection of the sun on the windshield annoying. But the gallant Alberto noticed this and commanded the driver to stop and adjust the windshield, while from beneath the big cushions a massive fur coat was magically brought forth. Having delicately helped Mollie into the fur coat, Alberto gave the word and the journey was resumed.

But the sun still bothered her, and she found some difficulty in keeping the smooth hair of her coat from flying into her mouth. She found it impossible to breathe the words "Princess Mollie!" which sounded so appropriate. Some day—

But alas! Mollie suddenly opened her eyes and found herself in bed, the sun shining down upon her, while she was vigorously blowing her loose hair out of her mouth and tugging at the bed clothes to cover her exposed shoulders. More exasperated than she would care to have known, Mollie soothed her anger and disappointment by rolling her pillow into a big ball and pounding it. Then she rolled over and vowed to go back to sleep.

Deal Squarely With the Boy.

Port Allegany—The Port Allegany Chautauqua will be held August 14 to 20.

Ridgway—Thomas May, 69, a resident of Ridgway for 40 years, is dead, following an illness of two months from complications.

St. Marys—The annual picnic for the Protected Home Circle lodge of Johnsonburg, Ridgway and St. Marys will be held at the Fair grounds here August 10.

Shinglehouse—The McKean Natural Gas Co. finished a dry hole on their lease on the hill above the dugway west of Shinglehouse. They used about 900 feet of casing in the hole.

Johnsonburg—Joseph S. Flynn, 40, former Johnsonburg attorney, died Sunday evening at his summer home in York Beach, Me., Of late years Mr. Flynn resided in Manchester, N. H.

Kinzua—When Carl Webb, a youngster, was drowning in the Allegheny river last Tuesday, a stranger jumped in, brought him to the river bank and disappeared. Webb's parents are now seeking the modest stranger.

Johnsonburg—George MacWhirter, R. K. Knight and George Crotzer saw a fine buck deer along the Powers Run road as they were motoring home last Saturday from the Industrial club's picnic.

Mt. Jewett—The McKean County Law Enforcement league held a meeting in the M. E. church Tuesday evening. Rev. Allen of Bradford made the address and quite a number made donations for support of the league.

Coudersport—A Ford sedan driven by Roy Hard of Genesee went over the 300-foot embankment near North Coudersport. With Mr. Hard were his two grandchildren and Luther Brewster. The car turned a triple somersault and landed right side up. Beyond a few minor bruises none of the occupants was hurt.

Eldred—The well drilled by A. B. Henry on the Caufield lot near the boro line west of the railroad, was set to pumping, and put seven barrels in to the tank. Another well will be put down near it immediately.

Harrisburg—Extensive sampling of ice cream being sold by peddlers in cities and boroughs is being undertaken by agents of the state, who are about completing inspections of the soft drink bottling establishments.

Bradford—The upheaval of ten squares of pavement on Jackson avenue excavation was said to have been caused by expansion, due to heat. Residents of Jackson street say there was a loud report when the upheaval took place.

Mt. Jewett—Johan Ludvig Soderquist, aged 49, business man and local resident for 28 years, died Thursday July 13. His wife survives. Mr. Soderquist was a highly respected citizen. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in Mt. Jewett.

VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR SUBMITS COPY OF SONG THAT STIRRED COUNTRY.

John Cunningham, venerable Smethport citizen and veteran of the Civil war, has submitted to The Miner the original of the soldier's marching song which thrilled the brave Pennsylvania boys of '61-63, when they made response to Gov. Curtin's call for volunteers. Although the song, "Union Forever," is well known to every patriot, it has deviated somewhat from the original, as will be seen by the following, which Mr. Cunningham has preserved every since those terrible days of civil strife:

We are springing to the call of our brothers gone before,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom,
And we'll fill the vacant ranks with a million freemen more,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

We will welcome to our number the loyal true and brave,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom,
And although they may be poor, not a man shall be a slave,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

So we're springing to the call from the east and from the west,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom,
And we'll hurl the rebel crew from the land we love the best,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

The Union forever, hurrah, boys, hurrah!
Down with the traitor and up with the Stars,
And we'll rally round the Flag, boys, we'll rally once again,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

COUNTY PEOPLE READING.

A recent survey of rural conditions brought out among other facts that the average family subscribed to about nine different periodicals, including daily and weekly newspapers, magazines and farm papers. A showing like this indicates that the country people are doing a lot of reading and they know what is going on. Not many city households would show nine different periodicals subscribed for.

ANNUAL PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the congregation of St. Mary's church, of Sartwell, will be held in the Mullin grove, at Turtle Point, Wednesday, August 16. A full day's program is being prepared and there will be a big dance in the evening.—Eldred Eagle.

PERCAPITA DECREASES.

Everybody's pocketbook was lightened by nearly $5 during the last fiscal year, according to the statement of money in circulation on July 1, issued today by the treasury. Per capita circulation of money on July 1, was $39.87, as compared with $44.78 on July 1, 1921.

NORMAL APPLE CROP.

Pennsylvania's apple crop this year has been estimated by the U. S. bureau of markets and crop estimates at 10,032,000 bushels, or practically a normal crop, as compared with the last year's short crop of 2,208,000 bushels.

a New "USCO"—
Better, Heavier, Longer Wearing
30×3½—$10.90 No Tax added
on Sale Now

USCO set the high value mark for 30 x 3½ tires when it originated the $10.90 price last Fall.

USCO today betters that mark with a new and greater USCO—an USCO improved in many important ways.

For instance, a thicker tread—with a surer hold on the road—thicker side walls, adding strength and life to the tire.

And the price is $10.90—with the tax absorbed by the manufacturer.

Men have always looked to USCO for the biggest tire money's worth on the market.

They always get a bigger tire money's worth than they expect.

KEEPING A FAMILY.

Probably there is no other subject on which more real buncombe is written and spoken than on the cost of keeping a family and maintaining a home. It is a favorite subject with experts and statisticians. They appear to enjoy working that subject over, time after time. They make their survey, as they call the investigation, they prepare the schedules and prices; these point to a conclusion and then they gather in the facts to support the conclusion. The figures prove it; therefore it must be right. How could any one dispute figures well arranged? Most of these experts and statisticians select the mythical family of five on which to make their estimates. Five appears to be the favorite number with the experts in this field of research, inspection, buncombe and speculation. Ultimately they reduce the facts to dollars. It costs so much per capita per day to feed and clothe and educate and train a family. And they conclude and argue that that is so.

Of course those to whom the years have brought some wisdom born of experience know it all depends. The old-fashioned people, who were successful without experts and statisticians, who had to earn their own way and care for their families without scientific aid, know some facts which enter into the solution of that question that cannot be expressed in figures. One need be neither expert nor statistician, nor wise as Solomon, to know that some people have plenty and to spare on the same income that leaves others in trouble with their grocer, in disrepute with the credit man and not infrequently in court defending a suit on account. Much depends on the mode and place of buying and the judgment with which it is done. Much depends on the use of material in the home. It is possible for a poor cook to throw out more with a spoon than a man can bring in with a shovel. That old saw was true when spoken, and it is true today, because it is based on human nature.

Many a hard-working man and his good wife have solved these problems alone and solve them successfully. Because they had a limited income, a known need, they had the genius to plan and the will to accomplish. It all depends, partly on the man, but much more on the woman, the home-keeper, for she is the one who knows how to make a dollar go the farthest. She is the real expert, not in theory but in practice.

REAL TARIFF FACTS.

Resolved into the concrete, the tariff issue is simply this: Under the Republican policy revenue is incidental to protection; under the Democratic policy protection is accidental to revenue. The Republicans are more concerned with protecting some $60,000,000,000 of manufacturers and $25,000,000,000 of farm products from being put out of business by foreign competition than they are with raising some four to five millions of dollars from tariff revenues; while the Democrats are willing to give the foreigners the domestic market if they can augment the revenues thereby. Since the bulk of the federal revenues today are raised from income and corporation taxes, the Republican view appears to be the sounder, for if American production is handicapped, American taxable incomes must dwindle. This and this only, is the theory of party divergence on the tariff question. When it comes to fact, it is discovered that under Republican tariffs imports decrease and revenues increase, while under Democratic tariffs imports increase and revenues decrease.

A CONSTITUTIONAL PRESIDENT.

President Harding says: "The larger public interest must be asserted in the name of the people where the common good is the first and highest concern." The president has always been a consistent opponent of government ownership or operation of any private enterprise. "More business in government, and less government in business," has been a cardinal policy of his administration, but it is the president's first duty to serve the people and to protect them from any impending danger so far as he can do so in the exercise of his constitutional powers. Assertion of the public interest comes ahead of everything else in the administration of the government, and the president not only has the authority, but every principle upon which this government is founded directs him to utilize every resource at his command to uphold the public interest. Any influence that tries to run counter to that interest will find in President Harding a staunch defender of the constitution and of the people whose rights it is designed to protect.

OHIO WOMEN BUSY.

Ohio Republican women are very active at the present time. A large number of meetings have been held in different parts of the state; some of them have been regular organization meetings to prepare for election and others in the interest of certain primary candidates. Many women will be in the primaries as candidates for the state senate and house and a number will be elected. The Ohio legislature is sure to have a number of women members. Many of these women have been indorsed by county committees which in most cases assures their nomination. Although the county women have called their meetings simply to get started and in the interest of no particular candidate, in almost every case candidates for congress and state offices have presented themselves and been given a hearing.

It is a popular saying that "the devil quotes scripture." So do the soap-box orators and the street-corner country-savers.

TAX BONDS DECISION.

Bonds owned by a resident and held by a non-resident agent, attorey or trustee, are subject to the tax on corporate loans in Pennsylvania. Bonds owned by a non-resident and held by a resident agent, attorney or trustee also are subject to tax.

Such, in brief, is the opinion rendered by Deputy Attorney General George Rose Hull to Auditor General Samuel S. Lewis, the past week, on a question which involves many thousands of state tax on bonds in which non-resides are concerned. Some of the questions have been pending for years, and as in the case of the decision in tax on stock and bonds of corporations not organized for profit, the principles will govern in settlement of many tax cases.

It has been suggested that the ministers of the country devote one Sunday to preaching sermons on safety at grade crossings for autoists; but the trouble with that idea is that none of the fool autoists would hear the sermon. They'd be racing with trains to beat them across the tracks.

The voters of McKean county are still wondering what the platform adopted by the McKean county Democratic committee stands for, but all agree that the committee members know what they want. It's the offices.

Strange to say, there appears to be no disposition on the part of the Supreme court to withdraw, or even modify, its labor decision, despite Mr. Gompers violent opposition.

The fellow who saw the first robin last spring now has his ears to the ground determined to hear the first katydid.

General Ludendorff, the German war lord, says America started the war. He's wrong; she only finished it.

It looks as if Georgia lagged in zeal when she permitted Texas to outdo her in lynchings.

WHEN WE GO FISHING

By ARE H. EMM

Boys! it's great to shed your oxfords,
And to shake your happy rags,
When the summer sun is boiling in the sky!
And it's swell to trim your toe-nails
On the rocks and river snags,
And to bid the blistering banks a brave good-bye.
Fellows, we must hit the by-way
That goes winding in and out,
Wriggling right up to the waters, willows-girt,
That's the highway, lads, that's my way,
That's the road that suits a scout
And bids by-by to troubles, duds and dirt.
How you dash in, how you splash in!
How you dive in, if you dare!
Oh the happy thrill, the pulse-beat, the delight;
How your head does split the water,
How your heels do hit the air;
How you vanish, as by magic, out of sight!
Then you bob up with a shiver
Gently creeping down your spine,
Like a little tiger-kitten hunting game,
Oh, the quiver of the river
When you shiver, ain't it fine,
Don't it make the bloomin' bath-tub blush for shame.

THEY SAY

That the trout season ends the last day of July.

That the return of prosperity is demoralizing the Democrats.

That there is no sure cure for anything.

That too much doesn't seem to be for anybdy, any more.

That it is better to fail in doing something than to succeed in doing nothing.

That a vacation may rest a person but it doesn't increase the love for work.

That the only man who can practice what he preaches is the man who doesn't preach much.

That a Bradford man is called "Radio" because he broadcasts everything he hears.

That there are so many things to worry about these days that there's no use worrying about anything.

That The McKean Miner's subscription list is increasing by leaps and bounds.

That all doctors agree that the borough is distressingly healthy.

That wishes are worth a great deal before one is 30, but not much after that.

That too many people confuse ambition with a desire to have things handed to them.

BETULA NIMROD LANDS 3-POUND BROWN TROUT.

Ike Bailey of Betula, is the hero of the latest fish story. According to word filtering through from that point, Ike landed a three-pound brown trout last Friday while fishing in Havens brook, above Norwich. Ike is said to have observed the big fish while in quest of berries.

Returning home, he procured fishing tackle and, baiting his hook with a succulent grasshopper, landed the fish in record time. It measured 23 inches.

SMETHPORT BOY RETURNS TO INDIA AFTER FIRST VISIT HOME IN YEARS.

Wife and Children of F. R. Potter to Accompany Pattisons to Far Away Country.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pattison, of Burma, India, who have been visiting Mr. Pattison's sister, Mrs. Mary Terry, and relatives and friends generally in Smethport and vicinity since last May, will leave in a few days for their far-away home. It is their expectation to set sail from New York August 12. Mrs. F. R. Potter and children of Smethport will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Pattison to Burma, where they will join their husband and father, who is associated with Mr. Pattison in the oil business.

This was Mr. Pattison's first visit to Smethport, his native heath, in five years. Having spent the greater part of his life in the tropics—in South America, Mexico and India—he declares that he finds the warm countries far more to his liking, and that if ever he returns to America it will be to settle in one of the southern states. This, for the reason, he declares, that after several years of tropical life one finds it difficult to live in the rigorous countries of the north.

Mr. Pattison professes a decided fondness for India and its people. Although well aware of the trouble existing between England and India, he says that Burma is not included in the trouble zone. India, he says, is a very resourceful country and that the oil production there equals the best production of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Edward Caufield, a former citizen of Olean, who for 15 years has been a business associate of Mr. Pattison in the oil business in India, joined him in Smethport, Monday, and together they perfected plans for the long return trip. Mr. Caufield accompanied the Pattisons from India and was with Mr. Pattison when he visited his old home five years ago. Both gentlemen aver that Mr. F. R. Potter's liking for Burma after one year's residence is so great that that is the reason he has sent for his family. Mr. Caufield, like Mr. Pattison, expresses a decided preference for the tropics. He says there is a large number of Americans and Englishmen there and that everything is conducted in strict accord with the highest form of civilization.

GLASS WORKS STARTS.

Yesterday the fires were started under Tank No. 1 at the mammoth plant of the American Window Glass company in this city and within three weeks it is expected that the big concern will be operating to capacity and employing about 600 men. Tank No. 2 of the plant was placed in operation about one year ago and has run continuously since that time, with the exception of brief shut-downs for the usual repairs. The placing of the other tank in operation will mark the first time in two years that the plant has been operated to capacity. The American plant is operated by natural gas.—Kane Republican.

BOOZE STORED IN JAIL SMELLS TO HIGH HEAVEN.

The recent raid on alleged local distilleries and booze joints in which some forty barrels of so-styled booze or hootch or whatever it is, was confiscated by prohibition agents and loaded into the borough lock-up, does not after all seem to be such a nice thing as it was supposed to be. The lockup is full of the stuff with a smell like a garbage pit, making it impossible to use the jail for the purpose for which it was intended. The county authorities refuse to accept the booze and take it away, hence the borough, if it wants to get rid of the stuff, will have to sel it out in the street, and that is just what the officers are figuring to do, unless some proper authorities remove the stuff somewhere else.—Johnsonburg Press.

BRADFORD OIL CONCERN ISSUES $500,000 BONDS.

Bonds amounting to $500,000 have been issued by the Forest Oil company of Bradford, which have been purchased by banks and individuals, and the proceeds will be used in developing the company's holdings in the Bradford and Allegheny fields, consisting of 1,600 acres in fee. Contracts have been let for the drilling of 84 wells to be completed by the first of December, 1922. Arrangements will be made for other wells as soon as possible. The company's production is at present about 200 barrels a day.

HAD RAIN INSURANCE.

The Frank Burt Post American Legion at their recent convention took out rain insurance to cover their events in case of inclement weather. The rain on Monday July 3rd,—caused the attendance to be light at the ball game and the loss was adjusted through the office of the Port Allegany Insuring company, by the company paying the difference, up to the amount of the insurance.

SILKS AND LACES IMPROVED

As a Rule Color Obtained by Tinting Is Not as Permanent as That From Dyeing.

Sometimes, especially with light-colored silks and georgette crepe, it is convenient to give delicate tints by some simple method. "Bluing" and "pinking" are most often resorted to. The United States Department of Agriculture find that, as a rule, the color obtained by tinting is not so permanent as that from dyeing. There are soap dyes on the market which may be used for this purpose, or a tinting water may be made by soaking colored crepe or blotting paper, or by mixing a few drops of colored ink in clear water.

A glass of tinted water held to the light will show about the same color that it will give to the material. A piece of red crepe wrapping paper will easily impart enough color to a basin of water to restore a faded pink crepe de chine waist to its original shade. Violet or green ink or ordinary bluing will act similarly. A small amount of regular dye can also be used without boiling to tint silks. The color of deep cream or ecru lace may be restored by tinting with tea. Coffee is sometimes used, but it is less desirable, as it leaves an odor and does not give so clear a tint. A cheap grade of black tea is good for tinting, or left-over tea may be used.

SALT AND WATER IN COOKING

Considerable Variation in Amount of Moisture Absorbed by Cereals—Table Will Help.

Cereals vary considerably in the amount of water absorbed as they are cooking, specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture state. This fact accounts for the thin oatmeal or the too thick grits which sometimes appear from the hands of an inexperienced cook. A cupful of hominy grits should be cooked in twice as much water as a cupful of Scotch oatmeal, and it requires twice as much salt as any other cereal. The table below gives the proportions of salt and water to use in cooking one cupful of cereal of the various kinds:

Cereal.	Salt. Teaspoonfuls.	Water. Cupfuls.
Corn meal	1	3½
Hominy grits	1	4
Oatmeal (Scotch)	1	2
Oatmeal (rolled oats)	1	2½-3
Cracked wheat	1	4

EXULT WHEN FOX IS KILLED

Irish Farmers Glad to Contribute Sixpence or a Shilling for Dead Enemy of Hen Roosts.

It is considered a bit in the country [illegible] a poor countryman [illegible] dead, of course—in his arms, and dealing with it on farmers and hen roosts in the neighborhood, says London Answers.

He usually conveys it to the back door and displays it proudly to anyone who will listen to him; then, having described graphically what a fierce and destructive animal the fox was before his death, he begs for a small gift of money.

The custom is very ancient and is called in many parts of England, "begging the fox." The idea is this: Foxes, especially in nonhunting districts, are one of the farmers' greatest enemies, and the knowledge that one of these creatures has been destroyed—especially the female fox is indeed good news to the farmer. As a consequence, should any poor cottager be fortunate enough either to shoot or to trap a fox, he carries his victim, for miles round the countryside and displays it.

He expects a reward from each farmer he visits and is very seldom disappointed. The gifts vary from sixpence to as much as 5 shillings, and one day on the road "begging the fox" can easily yield the lucky laborer 4 or 5 pounds.

The skin is also, of course, his own property, and for this he can sometimes secure as much as 25 shillings in the market of the nearest town.

THE GHOST LAID

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

The coupe came to a stop at the top of the hill. The driver turned, smiling resignedly to Cecily.

"No gasoline," he explained. "That is the result of leaving the entire care of the car to my chauffeur. I am sorry. Will you sit in the car while I go in search of gas, or would you prefer to wait on the veranda of that deserted house? I can promise you that no ghost will trouble you—the place has not that interesting reputation. I remember, however, when its inmates were prominent and happy residents; a long line of successive Websters. May I take you over there—the garden is beautiful in the moonlight; and I will be back shortly."

"I will wait at the house," Cecily said.

Wonderingly she gazed after the tall figure.

"Why," she asked herself, "do I not love Stephen Ware? What does he find to care for in me? Or is there, after all, no love such as the poets and writers have prated of, throughout the centuries? Father is right; I must keep Mr. Ware waiting no longer for his answer, and by all that is reasonable, it should be the answer of his desire." The girl sighed. "Yet, if one might only have some sign by which to know—"

Her little slippers tapped the veranda floor of the old house; a sweet honeysuckle vine sent ghostly shadows across it. Through long French windows she glimpsed desolated rooms; at a farther end a white marble mantel also gleamed out ghostly. Cecily pictured the rooms gay with young folk of a former time—little happy children grouped about their mother's knee; young women, these mothers, like herself, now gone on to their rest, or dreaming, perhaps, over some far fireside, of this same old home and days long past.

Something warm, caressing, pressed against her. Cecily bent down to touch a dog's furry head. "Why," she said, "you might have been savage, threatening; and you are companionable, instead. Where did you come from?" Madly the dog wagged his tail.

"He is lonely for a woman's presence," remarked a pleasing voice near by. "Don has had to camp with me for a few days, and misses the women at our apartment, who spoil him with petting."

"I see." Cecily spoke dubitfully. Then, as the stranger remained, she added: "I am waiting here to be called for. Our car ran out of gasoline, and it was necessary to go for more."

Calmly the man sank down on the step, while the friendly dog rested his head on Cecily's lap.

"You like this old home? Pretty, tangled garden, isn't it?"

"I was trying to people the house in fancy, with those who have lived here," Cecily answered dreamily—"the mothers and little children—" The man leaned toward her.

"I was one of those little children," he said, "and mine was a happy childhood. So happy that the years have brought nothing to compensate. There was a fishing pond down by the hillside—we used to spend hours there—and a leafy grotto, where my mother used to give picnic suppers to us children."

"Why," he demanded, "am I pouring this all out to you?—a chance victim." He laughed shortly.

Cecily touched her face, to find it wet with tears.

"Why," she asked shakily, "am I crying about it?"

Down the road came an erect figure.

"I must go," she said breathlessly. The man at her side gazed more intently into her sympathetic face.

"Is that your husband?" he asked.

Cecily shook her head.

"I am not married," she answered gravely. "Mr. Ware, with whom I am driving, is my father's friend—and my own. I am stopping at White Towers for the summer."

"I have heard of Stephen Ware, of course. He is as gifted in our profession as I am humble. My name is Paul Webster."

"We will be ready to start immediately, Cecily," called a voice; the vines hid her. Paul Webster put out his hand. Cecily's was in his clasp.

"You are going back to the city?" she asked him.

"Not if there is a chance of seeing you here," he answered daringly.

"I thought," she said slowly, "that I'd like to bring some of the children from White Towers, out to the fishing pond—and we might have a picnic supper in the grotto—if you would show us the way, and—"

"Show you?" cried Paul. "Why, if you would just come here sometimes, the ghost of the old house would be laid. I will get old Hannah to keep house for me here." Cecily was gone.

"I am sorry to have kept you waiting so long," Stephen Ware said.

"Long?" Cecily questioned—she looked at him compassionately.

No Mystery.

"How do we hear?" asked a scientist. That is easily told. Somebody tells a friend and tells her not to tell, and the friend of the teller tells a friend of ours, and she tells us. And so we hear.

Wisdom of Birds.

Birds, in the construction of their nests, almost without exception, avoid bright-colored materials, which might possibly lead to the discovery of their place of abode by an enemy.

"A Little Learning."

One of the young women knew nothing about football and knew she knew nothing; the other knew nothing about football and thought she knew something. The result was that the couple caused endless amusement among the spectators sitting near them. When the girl who thought she knew something had given tons of inaccurate information to the girl who knew she didn't know much the latter pointed to the field and asked:

"What are those?"

"What, dear?" replied her companion. "Do you mean all those little figures?" They're men, of course."

"No, no! I mean those posts stuck in the ground."

And she pointed to the goal posts.

"Well, fancy you not knowing what they are!" exclaimed Miss Knowall. "Why, they're football fixtures!"

Peculiar Church "Ceremonies."

Since a Spanish play, produced at the Opera Comique, depicted dancing in churches, Parisians believe that dancing in such establishments in Spain is quite fashionable, only they themselves would be against such attractions in France. Nevertheless there exists a church in France where one day in the year—Saint Marcel's day—dancing is allowed in the village church. At Barjols, they kill a calf and cook it in the church and eat it there. After the meal the choir makes way for a local orchestra, which hits up the liveliest fox trots and shimmies, and couples gayly whirl around a floor shorn of its pews and chairs.

Shoot Cable Over River.

Telephone and press communication with Portland and points as far north as Montana, cut off recently by the overflowing of the Santiam river, in central Oregon, was restored by shooting across the river a weight to which was attached a light wire.

A projectile gun was used, according to the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company. After ten attempts the wire was landed across a 400-foot gap and an emergency cable pulled across.

Too Much Cut Out.

"Your show can play in Plunkville if you cut out the objectionable features."

"Won't pay me."

"Nonsense. You can continue to charge $2 per seat."

"Not for a ten-minute show."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Sixteen miles from the nearest pump
And the blame old tank bone dry;
Sixteen miles on a lonely road,
No phone! and the midnight nigh!
No stars wink back from the sky so black,
No gas, and none to buy!

So you sit back tight in the deep, dark night,
And you cuss yourself for careless;
And your smoking's gone, and you just can't yawn,
For these woods are not now bearless;
And you're all alone and you'd like to groan,
And you feel so debonairless.

You hope and pray for the coming day,
Or a car coming through, belated;
Or any old thing that will help to bring
Relief; but it seems you're dated
For a long night turn, then you discern
A headlight's gleam, you're elated!

Then you chortle with joy, for surely this boy
Can spare you a gallon or more;
And you stand in the gleam of the headlight's beam
Waving "Stop!" and your spirits soar
Because he's coming; but he goes by humming,
Right straight on with a mighty roar!

LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE GETS FULL REPORT OF BIG WINCHESTER MEET.

Charles A. Masser, local hardware and sporting goods dealer, is one of the more than 1,000 members of the National Association of Sporting Goods which held its second annual convention in New Haven during the last week. While unable to attend this year, Mr. Masser has been furnished quite a fulsome report of the convention, which was attended by about 1,200 of the foremost hardware and sporting goods dealers in the U. S. This number gives one an idea of the importance attached to being a member of the Winchester clubs. They came from every State in the Union, mostly in special trains, with the word "Winchester" streaming from every car. Features of the big meet were conferences on advertising, merchandising, store arrangement and display, accounting, selling in its broader aspects, sporting goods, guns and ammunition, fishing tackle, cutlery, flashlights, batteries, skates, tools and other Winchester lines.

COLLIDES WITH TREE.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross K. Knapp and children of Kane, visited friends in Smethport, Sunday. In turning his car in West Main street, Mr. Knapp hit a firmly-rooted tree, which put the car out of commission for a time, but did not damage the tree. The occupants escaped injury.

LETTING CATS OUT

CLARA C. HOLMES

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Minerva, here comes Jane. I'm goin' to hike over to Peggy's."

"I wouldn't, Cynthy; what's the use of harboring grudges against folks?"

"Well, I'll let Jane see how I'm offended. She says I'm forever lettin' cats out of the bag. The idee of her callin' me down for jest a-tellin' Samuel Tobias' folks it would be jest as well for 'em to dress up a little.

Minerva finished feeding her pigeons, pigeon raising being her hobby. Cynthia ran into the cottage to answer the telephone ring. Meanwhile Miss Jane came into the dooryard. Cynthia sneaked into the dining-room cupboard.

"Good morning," greeted Jane. "I came to say that we are to have a knitting-bee at Aunt Julia's."

"What I really came for," continued Jane, hesitating, "was to plan for Wilfred."

"Oh, do tell!" rejoined Minerva. "He's a bachelor. Where's Cynthy?"

"She's gone out," reassured Minerva.

"Wilfred an his new wife are coming—"

"Wilfred and his wife!"

"Yes, he married Miss Hildegarde, the teacher."

"So Peggy got jilted?"

"Yes, the poor, abandoned babe," sympathized Miss Jane. "Wilfred preferred Alice."

"When be they comin'?"

"Tomorrow, on the steamboat. Wilfred and Alice invited along their friend, Prohibition Officer Townsend. They were to have had a double wedding, but the prohibitionist's lady disappeared the last minute."

"Now," continued Jane, "we can entertain Wilfred and his wife, but where on Weicusset Island we can house that prohibition agent is more than we know. Could you put him up?"

"Well, we might—for a short spell."

"Good! Of course that bride-to-be's disappearance has beclouded our household. We aren't in the mood for a Weicusset hubbubbino. We'll keep the affair quiet."

"Course we will," reassured Minerva.

"Thank you; good morning."

Minerva went to work in her kitchen. Soon Cynthia appeared. Her faded gray eyes were exultant.

"Where have you been, Cynthy?"

"Hidin'."

"You played eavesdropper!"

"Couldn't help it."

"Cynthy, you ain't goin' to say anything. If you do, you shall go back to live with Stepmother Stillson." Minerva's black eyes snapped angrily.

"Everything leaks out in Weicusset. I'm not goin' back to stepmother's. Don't blame me if the story gets out."

* * * * * * *

The sitting-room at Aunt Julia's was a spacious one. Today in this room rested matrons and maids, old and young, all nimbly knitting wristlets, mittens, sweaters and what not. The afternoon was drawing toward its close. All matters concerning the island—political, religious, social—had been discussed. Then Dorothy Dunklee exclaimed:

"Samuel Tobias imagined he saw Wilfred Jones in Rockland yesterday."

"Did" came the chorus.

"On his way home," suggested Lila Reed.

"He's planning to surprise us," exclaimed Peggy Watson, gleefully.

"Let's all go to the boat," proposed Dorothy.

During this dialogue Cynthia had been biting her tongue for fear of "letting cats out." Now she gave vent to her pent-up emotions.

"I know 'twould look out," admitted she. "I told Minerva 'twould. Jane wants it kept quiet and let them come unbeknownst."

"Them," exclaimed Peggy. "Wilfred's married!"

The next day the Island Queen steamed in. The Weicusset brass band began to play. From ashore a cannon and several rifles blazed away.

A reconnoitering party from the steamboat cautiously came ashore and being informed that no harm was being meditated they carried the assurance to the passengers, who, not without misgiving, proceeded to disembark. The first person who descended the gangway was a game warden; then followed a commercial agent, a traveling evangelist, Miss Gay, a Rockland milliner, old Mr. and Mrs. Hanks, and Jake, a peddler—nobody else. A wail of disappointment rent the air. The steamer chugged.

The celebrators dispersed, save where a group lingered with Cynthia, who could only lament: "Must be they got left."

When Cynthia reached her brother's house the family were at dinner. A stranger sat with them whom Minerva introduced as Mr. Townsend. Cynthia's eyes opened in wonderment. Surely this man had not come on the Island Queen.

Hearing peals of laughter inter, Cynthia peeped out of the window. She saw Wilfred and Alice and Mr. Townsend chatting with Peggy. She gaped, and then repeated artlessly:

"The abandoned babes' have each found a second-hand Job's comforter."

She listened. Peggy was speaking.

"You were lucky in striking the Rockland man with the launch; otherwise you would have landed here in a strike."

Everybody laughed except Minerva, who was silently, triumphantly feeding her carrier pigeons.

POPULAR LOCAL GIRL WEDS NEW YORK MAN.

A delightful wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Donahue at St. Elizabeth's church Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock, when Miss Clara Hungiville, one of Smethport's most popular and highly esteemed young ladies, became the bride of Mr. Frank Napier, a rising young business man of New York City. The ceremony took place in the presence of relatives and immediate friends of the bride and groom, following which a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home. Later in the day the newly wedded pair left for Albany, New York and other points of interest, after which they will make their home in New York city, where Mr. Napier holds a responsible position. Congratulations of scores of friends are extended and best wishes for a long and happy life attend them.

FARMER VALLEY GRANGE DEDICATES NEW CURTAIN.

Residents of Farmers Valley got their first glimpse of the big new curtain for the Grange hall last Saturday evening, when Mr. Walter Wesley Smith, on behalf of the Brinkman Display Service of Cleveland, Ohio, made formal tender of the curtain to the Grange. Many were present as guests of Valley Grange No. 1190, and the exhibition of the big painted drop proved a delightful surprise. Artistic and attractive in every respect, it is embellished with numerous advertisements of Smethport, Port Allegany and Bradford firms, so arranged as to set off to good advantage a beautiful lake and mountain scene. The new curtain is of substantial structure and designed to last many years.

BRAVE BEAR HUNTERS FEEL KIND O' SHEEPISH

There was quite a bit of excitement on South Main street, Tuesday afternoon when someone reported a big bear had invaded the oat field of Milt Wright's. Several brave "bar" hunters from the refinery piled into Manager Cowden's automobile, which they were sure could go faster than the critter if it happened to turn on them, and started for the scene. It is said that they were all heavily armed, prepared for the worst, but this latter was denied. At any rate the advance was made in good order, and had the animal any serious intentions of being kilt, they were prepared to accommodate him. But it hadn't, for when the gasoline buggy got close enough the "bar" merely looked up and said "b-a-h" and the would-be hunters, who had their reputations as nimrods all in front of them, felt kinda "sheepish" when their bar turned out to be a big black sheep.—Eldred Eagle.

The Civil Service commission invites special attention to the fact that in examinations held recently in DuBois, Pa., and other cities throughout the United States for junior engineer, Bureau of Standards; junior physicist, Bureau of Standards; junior technologist, Bureau of Standards, applicants were not secured in the number desired, and that these examinations will be held again on August 23.

Persons interested in these or other examinations should apply to the secretary of the U. S. Civil Service board at the local post office for detailed information and application blanks.

TAKES TRIP TO MICHIGAN ON BIG FREIGHT STEAMER

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Farnham and Mr. H. R. Hilton and daughter, Miss Ruth Hilton, of Port Allegany, leave Buffalo Thursday (today) on the freight steamer, W. F. White, for a trip on the lakes to Calcite, Michigan. The steamer has a capacity of 11,000 tons and is one of the three steamers which carry lime from the quarry at Calcite to Buffalo and other ports. The quarry at Calcite is said to be the largest single lime quarry in the world. Mr. Farnham represents the Michigan Limestone company in this vicinity.

"Owed" to Mountain Dew

By ARE H. EMM

I took my Ford one recent eve and the home town tar behind did leave, and rambled on a lonely road for one long happy while. My wife was in the seat with me, the kids behind just yelled with glee and we knew as we rolled along that we were right in style. But when we reached the loneliest place, the motor skipped its even pace, and spit and fussed and kicked around and all at once it died. we couldn't make the blame thing go, 'twas the first time it had acted so; we cranked and tinkered this and that and everything we tried. And then we looked beneath the seat and I'd confess that I felt beat when I found that old tank had empty got once more. The nearest pump was seven miles, our faces were not wreathed in smiles, in fact the whole bunch showed that they felt kinda sore. This thing had caught us unawares, the woods there were chock full of bears, we couldn't stay there very long or they would eat us up, my wife said. Try some mountain dew, perhaps that stuff will take us through; so I gathered me a quart or two in my trusty drinking cup. I had small faith in that queer stuff, I thought it weak, not strong enough, but I put it the tank to give it one good honest trial; I kicked the starter one quick spin, she fired, I thought: 'Here's where we win', the next thing I knew we were down the road about a mile. We thought we'd go along until we found a pump and there we'd fill our tank with gas once more and ride until we got enough. We found no pump, the car ran strong, we drove that kid the whole night long, convinced at last that mountain dew is most enduring stuff.

BARNEY OLDFIELD VOTES MARMON CAR THE LEADER

"I have used many makes of high grade cars," writes Barney Oldfield. "But none of them have ever had any harder service than my Marmons. The principal reason for this is that since using the Marmons I have undertaken the manufacture of Oldfield tires, which I test personally. To get definite, personal knowledge of how my tires stand up, I have driven my Marmon Speedster continuously under most extreme conditions.—high speed on race tracks and on roads and hard going in cross country trips.

"This car has not only served as a pacemaker for a lot of races during the past two years, but has been driven across the country from coast to coast three times, and on many trips visiting Oldfield tire dealers everywhere in the United States. It has covered a total of 36,000 miles and is today running as well as it was the day it left the factory.

"Mrs. Oldfield has used the Coupe on two cross country trips and has often remarked as to the extreme comfort of riding and the great ease with which she has handled the car."
